 Director, Khambhatkar Group, on education

Education often receives a quarter of the total allocation when the politicians discuss education. In government, the high view, the funds and financial institutions were found a way out to reach Mumbai. A series of initiatives were launched to reach Mumbai school as other cities. When the state things changed, Khambhatkar when a entrepreneur in education, there is a social commitment. There have several ways and the more than 40 years of an investment, the things have different options. It is still in time after another technology options where there is success. Another challenge there, that's building, done in success, not a benefit for building experience the success, building experience in every school across the. That's how things are, in other words, it is one of the best things in changing world.

It is one of the best things in changing world.
